A pensioner and committed churchgoer has died after a fire ripped through her home in Chessington.

Dorothy Whiteway, 90, was a popular member of Chessington Methodist Church and the Surbiton Club for the Blind.

She was found dead in her home in Moor Lane after a fire gutted the house on Sunday evening.

Her husband Roy was pulled to safety by a next-door neighbour, and is recovering in hospital.

Friends and family paid tribute to Mrs Whiteway this week.

Son Steve, 56, said she was "very much a family person" who loved to see relatives.

A member of the women's fellowship group at Chessington Methodist Church, which stands just yards from the Whiteways' home, said: "She was a lovely woman serving the church and the community. Anybody that needed her, she was always there."

Chessington councillor, and former borough mayor, Councillor Shiraz Mirza said he was "devastated" by the news of Mrs Whiteway's death.

It took two hours for 35 firefighters to put out the blaze, which started at about 5.30pm and left the house uninhabitable.

An investigation into the fire is ongoing, London Fire Brigade said.

RICKY REEL: Mum was subject of undercover intelligence 'We should have been left alone to grieve'

CHIEF REPORTER

ROSS LOGAN

ross.logan@london.newsquest.co.uk

A mother campaigning for the truth about her son's mysterious death in Kingston 17 years ago was spied on by undercover police.

Sukhdev Reel said officers investigating covert police practices told her she had been the subject of intelligence gathering at least five times, between 1998 and 1999.

Mrs Reel told the BBC: "This was happening at the time when we were feeling very low. Our family was really torn apart. This was the time we should have been left alone to grieve for our son, instead of being spied upon."

Mrs Reel's son Ricky, 20, disappeared during a night out in Kingston on October 15, 1997, and was found drowned in the River Thames a week later.

The Brunel University student and his friends had been racially abused and attacked by a group of white men shortly before he disappeared.

Mrs Reel has always maintained her son was murdered. An inquest in 1999 recorded an open verdict and two separate police inquiries failed to establish an exact cause of death.

She is one of several justice campaigners believed to have been the subject of information gathering by officers from the Metropolitan Police's special demonstration squad (SDS).

A report by Operation Herne – which investigated claims officers deliberately infiltrated justice campaigns – criticised the Met for keeping information "which served no purpose in preventing crime or disorder".

Derbyshire Chief Constable Mick Creedon, who led the operation, said there had been a lack of regard by the SDS, Special Branch and the Metropolitan Police.

But the report found no evidence that officers deliberately infiltrated or targeted family members from justice campaigns.

John Azah, chairman of both the Kingston Race and Equalities Council and the Kingston Safer Neighbourhood Board, chaired a Justice for Ricky Reel campaign in 1998, and sat on a panel overseeing the second police investigation into the death.

He spoke to officers from Operation Herne last week, and was assured he was not the subject of information gathering.

However, he was told his name appeared in information regarding Ricky Reel's family.

He said: "They could have destroyed that information but they kept it, which I find unacceptable."

"I've been assured they were not investigating me or the family. I'm content with them if I believe them – but after everything that's happened, that's a big if."

They have entertained us with breathtaking feats of acrobatics, acting, dancing and musicianship for the past three weeks.

But the young performers behind the 2014 International Youth Arts Festival (IYAF) took their final bow at the weekend.

Throughout July, visitors to Kingston have been treated to innovative, inspiring and occasionally death-defying performances by artists from across the world.

From Circus Suburbia's aerial ribbon dance in the Bantall Centre atrium, through to C-12's market stall dance routine and guitarist Tim Fulker's 27-hour busking marathon, organisers Creative Youth hailed the sixth installment as one of the best yet.

Still no report on 'failings' over Charito murder

Murdered: Charito Cruz

A crucial report into the brutal murder of a mother at the hands of her partner is unlikely to be published before the third anniversary of her death.

Charito Cruz, 37, was murdered by Asad Niazi in September 2011, after he beat her over the head with a hammer in front of their infant daughter at their home in Cambridge Road, Kingston.

A domestic homicide review is investigating claims of failings by both police and social service managers and a subsequent cover-up of the alleged failings.

Its author, domestic violence campaigner Davina James-Hanman, who started her review in February 2013, admitted publication had been delayed due to family issues of her own.

Reviews are meant to be completed in six months, according to Home Office guidance.

She said: "I have submitted the final version with just a few minor points to be clarified so as far as I am aware it is with the Community Safety Partnership and/or the Home Office now."

"The Home Office schedule is such that the first meeting at which it could be considered is September, but it may well not make it until the October meeting or even November."

Councillor Andrea Craig, lead member for children, youth and adult learning, said: "Until that report is published, the family will not have closure."

Family 'owe success' to mother who died in fire

REPORTER
JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

Tributes have poured in for Dorothy Whiteway, the 90-year-old churchgoer who died after a fire at her home in Chessington on Sunday.

Son Steve Whiteway, managing director of the historic Epsom Coaches company, said: "She always loved having family occasions – she always enjoyed her family."

"She got to see her granddaughter married, and her great-grandson christened."

"My parents reached their 60th anniversary in 2011."

Mr Whiteway, who grew up in Chessington, attributed his personal success and that of his two brothers in part to his mother's support.

He added: "She was always very driven. I quite often got extra homework."

"We didn't always like it at the time but in retrospect we all did very well."

"We have a lot to thank her for. We've all risen to the top of our respective companies."

Next-door neighbour Rosemary Rendall, whose husband Alan pulled Mrs Whiteway's husband Roy from the fire, said: "We've lived next door to them for 30 years."

"They were like second grandparents to our three children. We even went on holiday together when the children were young. You would have to go a long way to find anyone that had anything bad to say about her."

A trained florist, Mrs Whiteway had won the Kingston in Bloom competition several times with her husband, and many lovestruck couples had seen her creations adorn their wedding ceremonies at Chessington Methodist Church.

A friend at the church said: "She used to do all the flowers. "She was coming to terms with the fact that she could do less and less. This kept her going – she loved to go out."

"She did whatever she possibly could. She was cheerful and happy, and loved company."

Chessington Councillor Shiraz Mirza, who met Mrs Whiteway during his first mayoral term in 2000, said: "Dorothy was a fantastic lady. I just can't tell you how dear she was to me."

"Dorothy was a such a wonderful person that the words can't express. This has really made a big impact."

The cause of the fire was still being investigated at the time of going to press.

'ALAN RISKED HIS LIFE'

Dorothy Whiteway's family have thanked the heroic next-door neighbour who pulled her husband Roy alive from the blaze.

Neighbour Alan Rendall was able to find Mr Whiteway and drag him to safety, after spotting smoke passing through his back garden.

Mr Rendall, 63, said: "I'd been working in my garden, and I'd just sat down to watch the Grand Prix."

"They have a conservatory at the back and at the time I didn't notice anything untoward."

"Just as I sat down in my dining room I saw some smoke go past."

"When I stood up I could see a fire. The flames were coming from inside the window."

"Mr Rendall wrapped a tea towel around his face to protect himself from smoke before entering the conservatory.

He said: "I ran into the garden and ripped out one of the fence panels. The whole of the back of the conservatory was on fire."

"I found Roy lying on the floor of the conservatory. There was glass crashing and things going bang."

"I got down on my hands and knees and dragged him out by the ankles. He was conscious, but dazed."

Mr Rendall, a maintenance engineer at Parkside Hospital in Wimbledon, credited numerous fire safety courses during his career for his quick thinking.

He said: "One of the things we need to be able to deal with is fire. You need to make suitable responses to a situation like that. I've still got a bad throat from it, but I declined to go to hospital. The whole thing feels like a dream.

"I feel quite emotional just talking about it."

Mr Whiteway's son Steve said: "Alan risked his life to bring him away. We owe him a big debt of gratitude. They've all been very good – the hospital, everyone. "There are a lot of thank yous."

Alan was great and the neighbours were all brilliant."

Adam Love, who was the first firefighter on the scene, said: "It was a brave thing to do to help his neighbour out."

"It's a natural instinct to help people, especially if they are old and vulnerable."

Nursery closed over fears for kids' safety

REPORTER

JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

A nursery was closed temporarily over an investigation into "safeguarding concerns".

Both police and Ofsted descended on Active Learning, in Kingston, over an unknown allegation received last Friday.

But the nursery has hit back at Ofsted, saying its staff are not suspected of wrongdoing and that the regulator's suspension of its registration goes against "natural justice".

A spokesman said: "The police have now concluded interviews with our staff and have informed us that there are no suspects within the nursery. However, Ofsted has decided - for reasons it has not yet communicated to us - to suspend our registration."

"While safeguarding of children is at the heart of everything we stand for, we believe this decision is overcautious in the extreme and Ofsted is acting in the face of natural justice by suspending the licence before carrying out its own investigation."

Staff from the Victoria Road centre, which caters for up to 156 children, were free to work in other Active Learning nurseries,

Currently closed: The Active Learning nursery

he said.

An Ofsted spokesman said the closure was "standard procedure".

One parent said: "The communication has been extremely badly handled. The parents are getting a feeling of complete stone-walling."

"You've got 100-plus kids that have been massively let down."

Rajan Giritharan, a father-of-three from New Malden whose youngest son goes to the nursery, said: "I'm a bit concerned. It could be anything. It could be health and safety or they have employed somebody without checking."

"If it has gone to police it can't be trivial. We need to know the nature of the allegation."

Ofsted completed its investigation on Wednesday. At its last inspection in 2011 inspectors said staff knew how to safeguard children and had a secure understanding of child protection issues, but that written risk assessments were not reviewed in line with legal requirements due to an 18-month gap between assessments.

Police said they had made no arrests.

Anyone who has a concern of a safeguarding nature is asked to contact Kingston's single point of access team on 020 8547 5008.

Driver arrested after cyclist dies in crash

A grieving New Malden family have paid tribute to their youngest child who loved doing up motorbikes.

Laurent Patrick Cullinan, known fondly by friends as Patrick, died weeks before his 26th birthday after his bicycle was hit by a car in Kingston Road, Raynes Park, at 12.45am on Saturday, July 19.

The car, a silver Honda Accord, stopped after the accident. A 32-year-old man, who was arrested on suspicion of causing serious injury by dangerous driving, has been bailed until September.

His father Harry Cullinan, a former lawyer, said: "The only consolation is that he was not conscious through his suffering."

"All we have got now are the very many happy, heartwarming memories of him."

Mr Cullinan, who had a long-term girlfriend of seven years, had just finished his two-year course in aeronautical engineering at Kingston College and attained merits and distinctions.

He had stripped and rebuilt two motorbikes – his "pride and joy".

Anyone with information about the incident is asked to contact the serious collision investigation unit on 020 8543 5157.

In memory: Tributes for Joon Kyu Kim, inset, were left at the Bental Centre

NAZIA DEWJI

Kingston shoppers and the leader of the council have called for better safety measures inside the Bental Centre after a teenager fell to his death from the balcony.

Former Coombe Boys' School pupil Joon Kyu Kim, 15, fell from the top floor just before 5pm, on Thursday, July 17.

He died in hospital an hour later.

The Korean student, who had just completed his GCSE exams, landed on the basement floor outside Mothercare.

He had lived with his father and brother. Kingston Council leader Kevin Davis tweeted: "Desperate news of boy falling to death in Bental Centre. Not the first to die this way. Time for talks on how to prevent future incidents."

In January 2011, mother-of-two Alexis Sims, 45, from Teddington, who suffered from depression, killed herself after jumping from the top floor.

Others took to Twitter. Tony Axelrod tweeted: "The tragedy at the Bental Centre yesterday must prompt action to screen off high levels. How many more incidents does there have to be?"

And Zsuzsika Mai tweeted: "To avoid further situations like this, they need to change things, make the barriers higher or add nets or something."

Shoppers were led out of the building and police cordoned off the area while paramedics attended to Joon, who had been at school earlier in the day.

Kingston police are still investigating the circumstances surrounding Joon's death, which is being treated as non-suspicious.

A Bental Centre spokesman said: "We are deeply saddened by the tragic incident that occurred on Thursday, July 17, and extend our heartfelt sympathy to the deceased's family, as well as those who witnessed what happened."

"A police investigation is currently under way and the Health and Safety Executive [Kingston Council's] are also undertaking an audit. The centre is co-operating fully with the authorities."

Deborah Walls, headteacher of Coombe Boys' School, said: "We are deeply shocked by the tragic loss of one of our students and our thoughts are with Joon's family and friends."

"Joon was an asset to the school, an incredibly hard-working student who contributed a lot to his peers and his year group. We will remember him with great fondness and affection."

"This is a terribly sad and difficult time for all of us. Pupils, staff and parents are helping each other and being given all the support they need at this difficult time."

Friends and family have been leaving flowers and tributes outside the Bental Centre this week.

One friend said: "He was full of aspirations and had a lot of goals ahead of him. He was saving up to buy a computer as he was an avid gamer, was academically adequate, but sought to improve himself by extended revision."

"His dream was to become a vet. He was a great boy and that's what aches my heart."

"He would go to the Apple Store [in the Bental Centre] and use their Macbooks to play Minecraft. We used to see him there after school wearing his school uniform."

Another classmate said: "He was by far the nicest person I know and everyone will miss him."

Drunk carried fake gun

Is there actually any point in going through the legal system if this is the result that we get. Fair enough, it sounds as though a "thinking skills" course could be hard work for this pondlife, but is it really a deterrent?

TWEETS of the WEEK

@draml was not the only one caught out: Quite an active thunderstorm settled over #surbiton. And naturally, started pouring while I was out w/o an umbrella....

@JoshBlakley might have had a point: @metpoliceuk @kingstonnews Police car doing a U-turn on Tolworth Greenway [sic] yesterday... No blues or toots and traffic towards a3.. Illegal?

@Arenaflores risked it: Today is Be Nice To Your Kidneys Day. I'm taking mine to Chessington World of Adventures, then we're going to drink lager at a carvery.

@Bullionbasis was preparing for the worst: Waitrose (that grocer down New Malden high street) sells peacock food. There's no way that civilisation is on the brink. No way...

DJMatt26 rued his poor life decisions: I can't believe I cycled home (Elmbridge) from Kingston at 3.30 am. It was freezing cold. Should of [sic] worn a jumper.

Designers cleverly altered their plans for Broadway after consulting residents Greenway is now working well after earlier concerns

As the secretary of the Hook Rise South Tolworth Residents' Association, I feel I must strongly disagree with Mr Walsh (Fifty shades of Greenway, July 17) and Mr Perham (Need a bit of tree thinking, July 17) on their comments about the Greenway.

Firstly, Mr Walsh complains of a lack of consultation on this project, but I do not recall seeing either Mr Walsh or Mr Perham at the consultation meetings.

We had considerable misgivings when the project was put to us, but the designers cleverly altered their designs to answer our concerns.

One of our concerns was that the walkway across the roundabout would be unsafe at night.

I had the pleasure of catching a 281 bus from Surbiton station to Tolworth and proceeded to walk home using the Greenway at nearly 1am perfectly safely.

The designers have cleverly used timber to protect people on the walkway from a side approach and, at the same time, given the users excellent visibility of people on the roundabout.

We also expressed concerns that there was not sufficient room for both cyclists and pedestrians on the Greenway – so the designers increased the width.

In our discussions with the police, they pointed out that there were low crime figures for the old subways but this is because, at night, they had been lightly used due to the history of muggings and sexual assaults in the Tolworth subways in the past.

Prior to the Greenway, people at night had been dodging traffic to cross the A3.

The Greenway is now working well since the motorists are now observing the 20mph limit.

As one who shops on the Broadway daily, I take great pleasure in seeing motorists courteously slowing or stopping to let pedestrians cross.

The convenience and flexibility of the Greenway and the result of this courteous action, in practice, gives a great feelgood factor for shoppers.

With regard to the trees – either the supplier, installer or whoever is responsible for maintenance must be liable and I am sure our council will sort this out.

Many readers may think that the Greenway was paid for by council tax, but it was paid for by central Government's Transport for London, and we must look on it as a small compensation for having the A3 run through our borough.

PAUL DURRANT
Tolworth

Still haven't got an answer

It might be a different party in control of the council, but it definitely seems to be wearing the same coat when it comes to avoiding answering questions.

Last November, I wrote to several councillors about the poor state of Queen's Promenade, along the riverfront.

Graffiti and dirty signage, poor maintenance of the beaches, overgrown flower beds and public toilets being closed are some of the issues. The noticeboard is displaying out-of-date notices, some dating back to 2004.

I was informed that the benches would be tended to and that an additional £2,000 would be put towards tidying up the promenade.

Since November, very little has been done.

Works did start on the benches, but were never finished.

I raised this with the new Kingston town councillors on July 7.

I emailed Councillor Brister, deputy leader of the Liberal Democrats, Councillor Doyle and Councillor Hitchcock, who was one of the leading councillors behind the new-look of Kingston market place.

Also on the email was Councillor Cunningham, lead member for environment and transport, and the leader of the council, Councillor Davis.

Not one of these councillors has acknowledged my concern about the Queen's Promenade or the poor state of the playground in Fairfield.

This raises concerns with the council officers, who are meant to be working in partnership with the contractors.

It would seem that it is a one-way partnership, with the contractors the ones in control.

If Davey can't see light on wind – vote him out

It has been said of Edward Davey MP that he is as dim as an eco-lamp bulb, not least because of his support for the massively expensive production of electricity by offshore wind farms.

When becalmed, they produce no electricity at all and need fossil fuel back-up.

But now he has also shown himself to be a Philistine of epic proportions by supporting the offshore wind farm along the Sussex coast.

It will ruin the seascape for people who love that part of the country – including visitors from Kingston, for whom it is not much more than an hour away.

May I appeal to the electors of Kingston to get rid of this man.

Please save us from this eco folly at a time when the whole man-made global warming theory is being questioned and has been rejected in Australia and Canada.

There has been no overall warming now for 15 years.

Warming has paused and we need to pause too before committing further billions and making fuel more expensive – which, sadly, hits the lower paid most of all.

Centenary of WWI

The lights go out across Europe

This Monday, August 4, marks 100 years since Britain declared war on Germany, effectively starting the First World War, writes Jon Sharman.

Kingston's contribution to the four-year conflict was not inconsiderable, and next week will see a number of services commemorating the anniversary.

There are also a number of current and upcoming events remembering those who played a role in Kingston's war effort, and here we present a round up of some of the dates to look out for.

Your King & Country Need You

A CALL TO ARMS.

RECRUITS WANTED IMMEDIATELY

FOR THE REGULAR ARMY

Between the ages of 19 and 35 years. Ex-Regular Soldiers, up to 45 years.
Certain selected Non-Commissioned Officers up to 50 years.

Men desirous of serving their Country should attend at any of the following addresses:-

THE BARRACKS, KINGSTON-ON-THAMES.	COUNCIL CHAMBERS, MERTON.
THE TOWN HALL, KINGSTON-ON-THAMES.	VESTRY HALL, MITCHAM.
(5 to 8 each evening.)	THE THEATRE, WIMBLEDON.
24, HILL STREET, RICHMOND.	DRILL HALL, SUTTON.
6, BEAMISH ROAD, PUTNEY.	3, HOOK ROAD, EPSOM.
467, YORK ROAD, WANDSWORTH.	MUNICIPAL BUILDINGS, LEATHERHEAD.
186, LORDSHIP LANE, EAST DULWICH.	CONSTITUTIONAL CLUB, WEYBRIDGE.
157, HIGH STREET, TOOTING.	TOWN HALL, CHERTSEY.
	LITERARY INSTITUTE, EGHAM.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

A call to arms: Clockwise from left, Officers of 3rd Home Counties Field Ambulance; Guns of 5th East Surrey Regiment; John Galsworthy; Recruitment ad; the Cole brothers

The Rose Theatre will commemorate the war's centenary with an audio-visual exhibition called Galsworthy and Human Battles on the Home Front.

It will showcase the campaign by Edwardian author John Galsworthy, who lived in Kingston, for better conditions for injured servicemen.

From Lord Kitchener's recruitment drive, to a family stranded on holiday and a lonely prisoner of war, the stories of Kingston's involvement in the conflict will also come to the fore.

They include stories uncovered in the Surrey Comet archives by researchers, as well as those shared by members of the community.

One adventurous student, whose tale is included in the exhibition, was even arrested in Frankfurt as he tried to come home from a trip abroad - he had raised suspicion by reading with the light on after dark.

Another case was that of the Cole brothers - five men all serving in the same regiment, and not all of whom would make it home.

The exhibition will run from Monday, September 1 to Saturday, October 25.

"The lamps are going out all over Europe, we shall not see them lit again in our lifetime."

Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey, on the eve of war

Exhibition showcases tales of bravery and sacrifice

Kingston Museum's showcase of the borough's contribution to the war effort has been running since May.

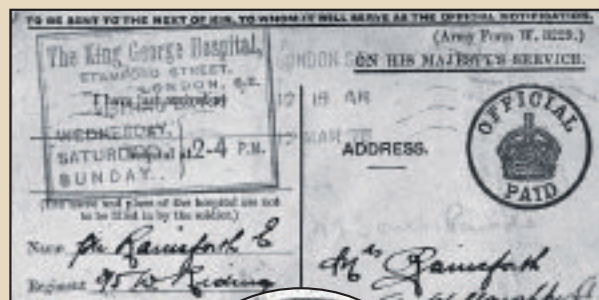

Researchers have compiled a collection of touching and varied stories from across the area, chronicling the sacrifices and successes of ordinary people during the conflict.

Examples include New Malden nurse Daisy Lavender, who gave up her job in service in London to help wounded soldiers - and then treated in hospital the man she would later marry.

A rifleman from Kingston, Charles Appleby, was blinded and nearly killed by an artillery strike.

Incredibly, he regained his sight while convalescing in England when a large black cat jumped on his head.

Also remembered are those who signed up to fight who were well under, and even over, the army's age limits, as well as one unlucky soldier who survived the war, having won a medal for bravery, only to die of the flu sweeping across Europe just three days before the armistice was signed.

The exhibition, called 1914: Remembering Kingston at War, will run until Saturday, August 16.

War stories:
Nurse Daisy Lavender, far left; A postcard, above, sent to the parents of Daisy's husband Ernest Rainsforth after he was injured; Charles Appleby, left;

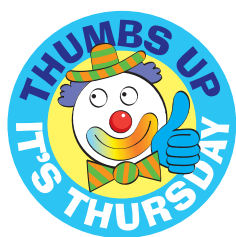

Kingston will mark 100 years since the outbreak of the Great War on Monday, with a service in Market Place.

Mayor Councillor Ken Smith will lead a civil ceremony on Monday, August 4, at noon, before Rev Jonathan Wilkes of All Saints Church leads a service.

A reading from the diary of Rifleman James Gordon Watson will be followed by an address by Rt Rev Richard Cheetham, the Bishop of Kingston.

All Saints will house 11 lit candles, which will be extinguished one by one, every hour on the hour, as part of the Royal British Legion's nationwide Lights Out campaign.

HOME HELP: Alfriston Day Centre volunteers get a boost

Cash will fund visits tackling loneliness

REPORTER

JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

They have been plugging away for two years, but volunteers visiting isolated people with reduced mobility for a cup of tea and a chat have finally been given funding.

The Alfriston Day Centre team now hope to expand their outreach service across Kingston to combat loneliness among the borough's older population after a £3,000 council grant.

The issue has prompted ministers to intervene and one charity to declare a state of emergency.

Manager Diane Double said: "There are people who never get off the chair, and they're brilliant people who have fantastic brains, but it's their bodies that have gone."

"It's not that they're lonely because they don't know people. They get forgotten."

Care Minister Norman Lamb told the Financial Times Britain had "inadvertently become quite a neglectful society" and that volunteers need to step in.

He said: "On our very streets we have people who live on their own, who don't see anyone and whose relatives might visit once a month. What's life like in between?"

Trevor Lyttleton, chairman of Contact the Elderly, said the problem "has reached a state of emergency and must not be ignored."

Conservative Councillor Julie Pickering, lead member for health, said: "It is obviously an issue that we need to address. We're picking up on lessons learned from other parts of the country. Part of that generally is, for me, selling the services that we have to make sure people know they exist."

Mrs Double said she feared Kingston Council's Kingston at Home scheme, which aims to move people out of residential care into their homes, may increase isolation.

She said: "I think a lot of it has been done on a financial level. It's more expensive to put people in residential care than to get a carer in at home."

Last year nearby Newent House was closed, and residents moved elsewhere or to private accommodation.

The council saved about £900,000.

Liberal Democrat leader Councillor Liz Green said: "Generally speaking people have a better quality of life within their own home. That doesn't mean they don't need access to people. That's one of the things the voluntary sector does better than councils – volunteers that go into people's homes tend to have more time."

For more information on volunteering, or arranging visits to your home, call Alfriston on 020 8399 4289.

Ingredients

5 spray(s) Cooking Spray, Calorie Controlled
3 large Egg, Whole, separated
75g Sugar, Muscovado
60g Flour, Wheat, White, Plain
15g Cocoa Powder

Filling and decoration:

30g Spread, Low Fat
100g Sugar, Icing
2 teaspoons (heaped) Cocoa Powder
75g Raspberries, (fresh or frozen, thawed)
50g Chocolate, Milk, melted

Instructions

- Preheat the oven to Gas Mark 5/180°C/fan oven 160°C. Spray two 18cm (7 inch) sandwich tins with low fat cooking spray. Line their bases with circles of non-stick baking parchment or greaseproof paper.
- In a large mixing bowl, whisk the eggs and sugar together using a hand-held electric whisk on high speed until pale, very thick and very airy. (This will take about 5 minutes). Sift the flour and cocoa powder together, then sift into the egg mixture and fold in gently using a large metal spoon. It is important to keep the air in the mixture, so do not beat.
- Share the mixture between the cake tins and level the tops. Bake for 8-10 minutes, until the tops spring back when pressed lightly. Cool on a wire rack for 5 minutes, then remove the cakes from the tins and peel away the lining paper. Cool completely.
- For the filling, put the low fat spread into a mixing bowl and sift in the icing sugar and cocoa powder. Beat together until smooth. Reserve about 1 tablespoon, then spread the rest over the top of one cake and place the other cake on top. Dip each raspberry into the reserved chocolate filling and arrange on top of the cake. Drizzle with melted chocolate and serve, cut into eight slices.

MEDIEVAL MAYHEM: Delve back into the depths of Kingston's history to the time of King John, who bestowed a charter on the town in 1200. But written documents like the charter were the province of very few members of society – the rich and powerful, and the lowly monks who spent their lives transcribing texts. Head down to Kingston Museum to find out why huge effort was expended on the details of manuscript presentation, what they were used for, and even how creating them could be ruinously expensive. You will be able to design your own medieval-style document with illuminated letters and authentic tools

Pop-star-to-rock-star frontman followed by a leap to folk fame – Busted's fresh-faced Charlie Simpson has moved through the genres in his musical career, writes Nazia Dewji.

Kingston's Banquet Records hired him for a show just before the release of his first solo endeavour Young Pilgrim three years ago.

And they have brought him back again with two back-to-back folk shows lined up for next month – one has already sold out.

The singer and guitarist has managed to keep an army of fans from his Busted days that included hits such as the Year 3000 and What I Go to School For in the early 2000s.

But his reinvention as a rocker in band Fightstar alongside guitarist and vocalist Alex Westaway, bassist Dan Haigh and drummer Omar Abidi, brought him three top 40 albums, although the change did see him face a battle to win over die-hard rock fans.

Jon Tolley, from Banquet Records, says: "We're excited to welcome back Charlie to Kingston."

"He's retained fans from both of his previous acts, but his solo stuff is a really honed sound and certainly where he is in 2014.

"The first gig sold out in a matter of days and we're in no doubt the extra date will soon be full too."

Simpson's intimate gig at Banquet Records will see the now acoustic singer-songwriter perform songs from his new folk album Long Road Home the day before it is released.

In regards to his new album, Simpson says: "This was the hardest record I've ever had to make, no question."

"There were points where I was like, am I going end up with an album that I really love here? And that makes it feel all the sweeter now that I've come out with something I'm proud of. I love the album more because of all that. I feel like it was an album I had to fight for."

"This album is, finally, the person I am."

SEEKING A GOLD DISC

Terry Pratchett's fantasy story following the lives of a group of wannabe rockers comes to the Rose Theatre this month.

Soul Music, part of the author's Discworld series, is all about performer and harpist Imp Y Celyn and his friends who try to hone in on a new trend – "music with rocks in it".

The story, delivered with both chaotic comedy and music, follows Imp, who comes to Ankh-Morpork with hopes of stardom but no money for the musician's guild fees to follow through his dream.

The show is directed by Luke Sheppard, of Matilda fame, and adapted by stand-up comedian Andrew Doyle with original music coming from WhatsOnStage Award nominee Craig Adams and choreography by West End regular Cressida Carre.

MOVE ANY MOUNTAIN

A Surbiton man has written a book about turning 50 and taking on the largest mountain in Western Europe.

A Tour of Mount Blanc and Other Circuitous Adventures by David Le Vay, pictured, is a travel log with "poignant and funny moments," he says.

The author of previously-published Hairy Hikers says: "It is quite a dramatic walk."

"It is a bit of a reflection of my own life – growing up and turning 50."

"I hope to increase peoples' awareness of the mountain and get older people taking on challenges such as treks and finding them exciting."

He added the story would include the many encounters with different travellers along the way and stories of the original Mount Blanc explorers which included the likes of Hannibal and Napoleon.

Ready Eddy

A former Kingston University student will launch his debut single this month, from his self-produced first album.

Eddy Smith, pictured, released the 11-track Easy Times in November last year, and the track Temptation will be made available as a single on Sunday, August 31. Smith described his music as "at the poppier end of blues, folk and jazz".

He said: "My music has been described as an easy listening blend of pop meets laid back soul. It has also been said it is James Taylor meets Jamie Cullum."

"The single is being played regularly on local radio stations – both Susy and Meridian Radio have featured the song on their playlists."

The upbeat, jazzy track rises and falls, and is punctuated by trumpet blasts and strong backing vocals – recorded by fellow music students at Kingston.

The single will be available to download through Smith's website at eddy.smithmusic.com.

LINK to PAST

Let's face it, none of us are getting any younger, writes Amy Dyduch.

As the years pass, we begin to wonder about those who came and went before us.

Coming from a family with a Polish history, I have to admit I know very little about them.

My grandma grew up watching many of her brothers and sisters die around her and lived in an orphanage from a very young age before she got on a boat from Africa to the UK, where she worked in a Fox's biscuit factory. But what about the rest of them?

Programmes such as Heir Hunters, Who Do You Think You Are? and Long Lost Family are bringing the task of tracing your family history to a wider audience and making us think about the past of our own relatives. For those of us who do not have the handy help of Davina McCall and Nicky Campbell, there are a number of routes to go down to discover the history of our ancestors. So where do you start? The first point is to write down everything you know, including dates and places because geography will play an important part in future research. Next, speak to living family members, who can provide a wealth of information about past relatives. When you have sucked all the knowledge out of everyone

● To trace your family history pop along to Kingston library and use the Ancestry website or simply browse books on family history to get started. Kingston library; Fairfield Road, Kingston; call 020 8547 5006 or email kingston.library@rbk.kingston.gov.uk.

you know, start to draw up a family tree. The whole point of this is to fill in the gaps in your knowledge so you can start to learn more about your family's past. Sooner or later, you will hit a brick wall – often online sources, local sources, books and journals can offer practical help.

The National Archives, Kew, holds many records that can help you find out about people's lives, deaths and careers.

From Army and Navy personnel to employee records, religious groups and asylum inmates, the centre has a wealth of information to help people with research.

Records can be accessed online, or if you fancy a trip over to Kew, the archives are just a stone's throw from Kew Gardens and Richmond Park.

A spokesman at the National Archives, Kew, says: "We don't keep birth, marriage or death certificates here – they are kept locally."

"So if someone was born in Hackney then died in Richmond you would have to go back to either the local authority or the local library to find the records."

Tracing family history can be an arduous task, but with all the resources available it can be an interesting and fulfilling journey. Visit nationalarchives.gov.uk/records/looking-for-person%5Cdefault.htm.

Prices rise by a record level

London sees over 20 per cent increase

House prices in London rose by a record annual rate of 20.1 per cent in May as overall growth in the UK climbed to 10.5 per cent.

The average home in the capital now costs £492,000, compared to £262,000 across the country, according to the Office for National Statistics (ONS).

The annual increase for house prices across the UK is the strongest since May 2010 but for London it is the sharpest since records began in 2002.

The ONS said: "House prices are increasingly strong across most parts of the UK, with prices in London again showing the highest growth."

Prices rose by 9.6 per cent in the south east and 8.6 per cent in the east, the figures showed.

Outside London and the south east, annual price increases averaged 6.4 per cent, the highest rate since June 2010.

On a month-by-month basis, values jumped by 0.8 per cent across the country, compared with a rise of 0.3 per cent a month earlier. The figures also show that first-time buyers face having to pay 11.3 per cent more to get on the property ladder than they did a year ago, with the typical starter home now costing £202,000.

Every region in England saw an annual price uplift, with the lowest rate of 3.9 per cent in the North West.

Prices overall in England rose by 11 per cent over the year, with a 6.5 per cent increase in Wales and 3.6 per cent in Scotland while prices in Northern Ireland fell by 0.7 per cent. In London, the house price index is 33.7 per cent above the pre-crisis peak level while England has recovered to just 8.9 per cent.

The figures come just weeks after the Bank of England moved to put curbs on riskier mortgage lending.

The average home in the capital now costs £492,000

Keep your children safe

Statistics show around two million children are taken to accident and emergency every year because they've been hurt in accidents and 120,000 are admitted to hospital.

Housebuilder Barratt has teamed up with the parenting website Netmums to offer the following advice on keeping your child safe in the home.

■ Install safety gates on the stairs as soon as you can, even before your baby starts crawling!

■ Check all the windows, even the ones on the ground floor; how far do they open? Far enough for a baby to fall from? If yes, you'll need catches or window locks. If you've got a balcony, check that your baby can't get out on to it.

■ If you've got blinds on any of the windows, make sure you tie the cords or chains up well out of reach and never put a cot near a window with such a blind. Also make sure all electrical wires and cords are kept tucked away and out of sight.

■ Keep potentially harmful things, such as household cleaners, liquidisers and medication, out of reach and sight of young children.

Remember just because these substances have child-safety caps, does not make them baby-proof. A locked cupboard out of reach is the best and most secure place for them.

Esher's Sohail Ahmed's unbeaten 88 ensured his side traded places with visitors Malden Wanderers in the Surrey Championship Division One drop zone at New Road on Saturday.

Wanderers – for whom Will Sabey (91), right, and John Hess (87) starred – posted 272-9dec as Esher toiled in sweltering conditions.

But the boot was on the other foot in the second half of the match as Ahmed passed the 500 league run mark to lead Esher to victory with the help of Matthew Clarke (50).

Happier times: Georgie Twigg is back from a groin problem

Defeat no problem for Twigg

A 3-0 defeat to Australia would not give many English sportsmen any reason to feel positive, but Surbiton's Georgie Twigg thinks otherwise, writes Stuart Amos.

The 24-year-old made her comeback from a groin injury to face the auld enemy at the Commonwealth Games on Monday having feared she may miss the rest of the tournament.

The injury had brought a premature end to Twigg's involvement in last Thursday's 2-0 win over Wales and she sat out Sunday's 5-0 win over Malaysia, which featured goals from clubmates Hollie Webb and Giselle Ansley.

England's women faced Scotland on Wednesday for a place in Friday's semi-finals and Twigg reckons the squad are in good shape to go for gold.

"It is nice to be back on the field, I am still a bit sore but obviously it is good to get out there and get the legs going," she said.

"Australia have been playing so well recently, but I think we put in a really good performance out there.

"It is disappointing to lose 3-0, but I think we are really gaining momentum, we put in a really good team performance and we can take that into the next game.

"It is small percentages that make such a big difference at the top level and hopefully if we meet them again we have those percentages in our favour."

GROUNDING: Ks striker warned goals will not keep coming easy

Pinney must work hard

Assistant boss Graham Harper has warned striker Nathaniel Pinney if he thinks he has life at Kingstonian cracked, he has another thing coming.

The 23-year-old took his pre-season tally to six goals with his third double strike as Ks came from 2-0 down at Whyteleafe to draw 2-2 with the Ryman Division One South new boys on their new 3G pitch.

Pinney is a direct replacement for departed hero Ryan Moss and Harper wants his man to find the target when it counts on August 9.

"It is all well and good doing it in pre-season," he said.

"Scoring goals is what we want from him, but you win nothing in pre-season.

"He has got to keep his feet on the ground, keep working hard like he is because we know that if he gets chances he will score goals.

"But he has to do that in the league where it counts."

Boss Tommy Williams is in talks with two players – including former Farnborough man Dan Bennett – over a possible move to Kingsmeadow after impressing in the Geoff Harvey Memorial Vase earlier this month.

But Harper admits adding players to the squad will mean there may be some difficult decisions to make on the horizon.

"We are in talks with Dan. We hope his signing is imminent," he added.

"He is a great player and has done really well, but we cannot sign everyone. We only have a small squad and we will have to do some juggling.

"Pre-season has gone well, but you cannot really judge a player until we get into a competitive situation.

"We will have some tough decisions to make, but they are good decisions to have because in the past we've been scrabbling around to get players in.

"Some good players may end up disappointed, but that is the nature of the beast.

"The players we bring in will only strengthen us."

Ks suffered their first defeat of pre-season with a 2-1 reverse at Tooting & Mitcham United, before letting a 2-0 lead slip on Monday night to crash 3-2 to Skril Premier Braintree Town.

Williams' men entertain Dover Athletic on Saturday and the Kingsmeadow chief reckoned that would provide a good indication where Ks are in the non-League pecking order.

"Pre-season is false because it's about how you're shaping

Runaround: Ks defender Sam Page, among the scorers against Braintree town on Monday, challenges Terrors scorer Craig Watkins at Imperial Fields on Saturday up in terms of fitness and match sharpness," he said.

"We are ambitious to get up to where they [Dover] are.

They will be a good benchmark as to where we are, how far we have come and what we still have to do."

Blues hero Terry's trip down memory lane

Chelsea playing a pre-season game on a hot summer's day at Kingsmeadow is a source of nostalgia for many fans, and it proved a pleasant trip down memory lane for Blues skipper and former England captain John Terry.

The 33-year-old scored two goals – one a 90th minute winner – as his side came from behind to beat League Two AFC Wimbledon 3-2 at the Cherry Red Records Stadium, as it is known by the Dons, last week.

It was in the same stadium for a large part of the 1990s that Chelsea opened up their pre-season programme, usually to a packed ground of fans.

The opposition every year back then were then Conference outfit Kingstonian as they gave Blues fans the chance to see their latest signings or young professionals making their first steps in the game.

"It used to be packed," said Terry.

"It was always boiling hot and it was a chance for us younger players to get 45 minutes because it was too early for a lot of the first team players to play the whole 90 minutes. So they are good memories for me.

"It was always a good pitch down there and always a big turnout – a large Chelsea following with the game being local.

"Everyone from the coaching staff was there, and like all pre-season games the matches were taken seriously and it was an opportunity to express yourself and stand out. We all felt that at the time and five or six of us young players did get an opportunity to do that.

"But I also played all my home reserve games at Kingstonian, so that ground was a kind of stepping stone for me when I was coming through at Chelsea.

"We used to get a decent turnout for the reserve games too and with the big pre-season first-team match there every summer as well, I have good memories from the stadium when growing up."

Terry's time in Chelsea's reserves was a short period, with his rise from the youth team to the first team squad being a rapid one.

But even before he was impressing in the second string he was required to attend games in Kingstonian.

"I was a ball boy for a lot of reserve games. When we were first year trainees we had to be around certain sections of the stadium and as soon as the ball went over the top of one of the stands, away you go.

"But by the time you got round there, often kids were running away with the ball and then you had to answer to the youth team coach and explain why we were two balls short at the end.

"It was part of my football education growing up."

Double triumph: Mike Robinson won both races in the Michelin Clio Cup Race Series over the weekend

Advantage Robinson

Michelin Clio Cup Race Series leader Mike Robinson extended his advantage at the top of the standings to 36 points at Brands Hatch over the weekend and revealed it was a case of better late than never, writes Stuart Amos.

The Surbiton ace, who qualified in pole position, led from start to finish in rounds seven and eight of the series to take his tally of wins for the year to five.

And Robinson paid tribute to the Total Control Racing team who prepared his car to perfection.

"I'm really pleased to come away with two wins. Thankfully we got two nice starts and didn't have to defend too much," he said.

"David [Dickenson] really pressured me during the first part of the second race, but my car was set to come on a bit later, it started to feel better and better.

"TCR have done such a great job with the car, it's been fantastic."

The series next heads to Snetterton on August 30.

BRONZE PAIR: Surbiton Hockey Club brothers James and England U21 captain Jonathan Gall returned from the European Junior Championships with bronze medals last week. England beat hosts Belgium 4-3 in a penalty shoot-out in the third-place play-off after the scores finished 1-1 at full time. It is the last time the siblings will play competitive hockey together for a while with Jonathan now too old for the U21 set-up and James leaving Surbiton for Nottingham University and Beeston Hockey Club this autumn.

IN TROUBLE: Kingstonian slipped into Surrey Championship Division Four relegation trouble with defeat at Old Hamptonians on Saturday. Only Tahir Khan (60) showed any fight as Ks slumped to 154 all out, before the hosts knocked off the runs with six wickets down. Fixtures: Malden Wanderers v Normandy, Farncombe v Kingstonian WINNER: Kingston & Polytechnic Harrier Mary Iheke won the Herne Hill Harriers 125th anniversary open meeting women's 200m in 24.4 seconds on Saturday.
